I've got a new job

1. Read these examples

I've got a new job What is it? I'm a footballer How's it going? Things keep kicking off	I've got a new job What is it? I'm a sugar farmer How's it going? It's sweet	I've got a new job What is it? I'm a lift operator How's it going? It's a bit up and down
---	--	---

2. Choose the best punchline (end line) for these jokes

I've got a new job What is it? I sell underwear How's it going?	I've got a new job What is it? Working at the recycling centre How's it going?	I've got a new job What is it? Fixing fridges How's it going?
I've got a new job What is it? I work in a car shop How's it going?	I've got a new job What is it? I decorate holes in the ground How's it going?	I've got a new job What is it? I'm a beekeeper How's it going?

Possible punchlines

It's pants!	It's buzzing	Tiring
It's cool	It's rubbish	Pretty well

3. Try making up your own 'new job' jokes.

Think of a job and then think of a word or expression that could go with it to make a punchline.

Or think of the expression and then think of the job it would match.

How to Make a Folded Book

1. Fold your sheet of paper along the two main directions (by folding it in half and then opening it, once for each direction).

2. Now make another pair of creases, dividing the long direction into quarters making 8 sections altogether.

3. Unfold the paper again, fold it in half and make a cut with scissors as shown – you should be cutting through a double thickness of paper, but only as far as the quarter-folds you just made.

4. Open the paper out again. The resulting page should have a cut in its centre, a bit like this.

5. Fold it in half along the long direction, so that all your pages are still on the outside.

6. Now push the folded paper inwards from each end, so that the cut inner bit pushes out in both directions to make a kind of cross-shape. Fold the resulting pages together so that your front page is on the outside.

7. And there you have it: a little book of 8 pages that needs no stapling or gluing! Now make a dust jacket by cutting strips of coloured paper and folding them round each end of the book.
